

JAPANESE GOVT. TRIES TO HALT TROOP MOVEMENT

Asks Aid of Soviet Russian Government to Stop the Hostile Chinese

NOTE BY MINISTER

Sharp Skirmish Occurs South of Tsitsihar Early
Today

By James R. Young
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

TOKYO, Japan, Nov. 19.—A warning against the sending of Soviet-Russian troops into Northern Manchuria was dispatched to Moscow today by the Japanese Government to Ambassador Hirota at Moscow, instructing him to inform Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Commissar for foreign affairs, that arrival of any Soviet forces in Manchuria would create a serious situation and would "likely result in serious consequences. Following close upon the capture of Tsitsihar, which took Japanese troops into the zone of Russian forces in Northern Manchuria, the instructions to Ambassador Hirota were heaved to have been occasioned by the feeling among Japanese Government officials that Russia might take military action to protect the Chinese Eastern Railway. The Japanese ambassador was told to inform the Soviet officials, however, the railroad had not been damaged by the heavy fighting which preceded the defeat of General Ma Chan Shan's Heilungking army and that the Japanese military authorities were refraining from any activities which would interfere with Russian interests.

TOKYO, Nov. 19.—The Japanese Government in a note dispatched to Moscow today asked the Soviet Russian Government to prevent the movement of hostile Chinese troops on the Chinese Eastern Railway in Northern Manchuria.

The note was sent by Foreign Minister Shidehara in reply to a Russian note in which Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet foreign affairs commissar, pointed out that the Japanese military advance to Tsitsihar might interfere with Russian interests.

Chidehara assured Litvinoff, that the Japanese would avoid any conflict with Russian interests, and denied that the Japanese were responsible for rumors that General Ma Chan-Shan, defeated commander of the Heilungking army, had obtained assistance from Russia. The Japanese foreign minister said he was unable to explain such reports, but believed that they originated in Chinese circles.

The note cited Japanese neutrality at the time of the Sino-Russian fighting in Manchuria in 1929, pointing out that Japan refused to permit the use of the South Manchurian railway to move Chinese troops, and asking that Russia should pursue a similar policy in the case of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

The Japanese expeditionary force which captured Anganki and Tsitsihar was remaining outside the walls of Tsitsihar today, although all Chinese troops have left the city, according to a war office statement.

A sharp skirmish occurred three miles south of Tsitsihar early today, a small body of Chinese were driven off, official dispatches to the war office said.

Receipts From Play Are To Be Used For A Trip

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Nov. 19.—The senior class of Bensalem Township high school will present the annual senior class play on Friday. The title of the play is "The Mummy and the Mumps." It is a comedy in three acts. The show will begin promptly at 8.15 p. m.

The receipts from this play will go toward the Washington fund. The high school orchestra, under the direction of Miss Davies, will furnish the music. There will be no reserved seats.

Bensalem will play a football game on Friday with Hatboro at the latter's home field.

TOWN BRIEFS

Mr. and Mrs. Howard P. Fennimore, of Wood street, attended the services conducted by the grand lodge officers, L. O. O. F., of Pennsylvania, held at the I. O. O. F. Orphanage in Philadelphia on Sunday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Fennimore were also guests at the dinner which was prepared for the grand lodge officers, following the services.

Mrs. James Ridge, Madison street, and Mrs. Madeline Shipp, of Atlantic City, will be Friday guests of Mrs. William Lindsay, of Ardmore, and Mrs. William Thorpe, of Philadelphia. Mr. and Mrs. John Sharp and daughter, Irene, of 632 Beaver street, and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Gokler and daughter, Miriam, of Yardley, were recent guests of Mr. Sharp's relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hoover, of Easton.

Miss Lillian R. White Is Wed to J. W. Delaney

The marriage of Miss Lillian Rita White, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry White, of 349 Lafayette street, and John William Delaney, of Frankford, took place at 6.30 p. m., yesterday in St. Mark's Church and was performed by the Rev. E. Paul Baird.

The bridesmaid was Miss Mary A. Dennen, of Washington street, Bristol, while Charles L. Webster, of Frankford, was best man.

The bride was charmingly costumed in a frock of royal blue silk crepe, made with a tight bodice and flare skirt. She also wore a small black felt hat, black shoes trimmed with reptile, smoke tone hose and a corsage bouquet of white roses and valley lilies on her shoulder.

The bridesmaid wore a beautiful outfit, consisting of an olive green tulle silk crepe dress, trimmed with black velvet. This was made jacket effect and also featured the flare skirt. With this, Miss Dennen wore a black felt hat, reptile shoes, sand toned hose and wore a corsage bouquet of tea rose buds and valley lilies at her shoulder.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, which was attended by only the members of the families of the happy couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Delaney will take up their residence in Frankford about the first of the year, 1932.

STUDY FOR REDUCTION OF EAR DRUM STRAIN

Tests Started by Naval Aviation Medical Director

COTTON FOR FLIGHTS

By Edward B. Lockett
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—Fearful that high-powered motors designed for military aircraft will injure the ears of pilots, the Navy has tackled the job of reducing ear-drum strain.

Tests have been begun under the direction of Lieut. Commander Joel J. White, in charge of naval aviation medicine, to determine just how much damage the big motors will inflict upon the pilots who sit behind them for hours at a time. Then White will compare the results with tests of hearing in connection with constant use of the lower-powered motors, and try to work out some method of relief for the pilots.

"We don't want to wait until after the damage has been done," White said. "If we did not take some precaution the Navy might find a lot of its pilots deaf within a year or more. The smaller motors haven't hurt any ears that we know of, but there's a lot of difference between riding behind a two hundred horsepower engine and six hundred, roaring away directly in front of the cockpit."

The matter of blocking out virtually all sound was regarded as a comparatively simple one, but some means must be worked out whereby this could be accomplished and equal pressure on the eardrums maintained. In the case of military aviation, where the planes are used for diving from tremendously high altitudes steeply towards the ground, unless the ears are free to adjust air pressure within and without, ruptured drums might easily result, it was pointed out.

Cotton has been the only substance found suitable for reducing sound on the ear drums in flying at present. Its porous qualities allow the air to move through without interference, and, while softening sound waves, does not block pressure equalization.

Outside of the noise factor, White said the new high-powered planes would have no injurious effects on pilots. Vibration from an airplane motor is to some extent absorbed in the parachute packs upon which the military pilots sit, he added, and little difficulty is experienced from vibration.

Three Hurt When Autos Collide; Doing Nicely

Charles Nadler, his daughter, Miss Eleanor Nadler, and Walter Straw, who were injured in an automobile accident at Monmouth Junction Sunday evening, are reported to be doing nicely at the Princeton Hospital.

The three were injured when the car in which they accompanied some friends, skidded and collided with another machine.

Mr. Nadler sustained broken ribs, and slight internal injuries; Miss Nadler, broken arm; and Mr. Straw, two broken ribs.

WALTER HUSTON AND CHIC SALE HEAD BRILLIANT CAST OF "STAR WITNESS," MOVIE BENEFIT ATTRACTION HERE

Melodrama Blends With Quaint Humor and Humanity in Latest Warner Bros. Film Which Will Feature Show
at Grand Theatre Next Monday Afternoon

Eddie Cantor is nightly broadcasting the big moving picture benefit which is to be staged at the Grand Theatre Monday afternoon and the proceeds of which are to be given to the Central Relief Committee of Bristol. The broadcasting is being done from the screen of the Grand Theatre.

With the first announcement of the proposed benefit made yesterday the project received almost universal endorsement. Many are planning to attend the performance on Monday afternoon.

"Every cent paid in at the box office Monday afternoon will go to charity," says Edward Lynn, manager. "There are to be no 'dead heads' in the audience and everyone admitted must pay the regular price of admission."

Mr. Lynn has planned a fine program for the afternoon including the showing of the sensational feature "The Star Witness."

Chic Sale in "The Star Witness," is a whole show in himself. Few there are who do not know him through his score or so of vaudeville characterizations, his "Specialist," his radio program, and his syndicated articles—and now he makes his screen bow in a story built about one of his most lovable creations—Granpa Summerlin, the Man Who Knew Lincoln.

Granpa Summerlin on a forty-eight-hour leave from the Soldiers' Home—visits his daughter and her family—sees a man shoot another just outside the window while he and his folks sit at dinner—making them all liable to be called as witnesses before the district attorney—who is played with consummate art by Walter Huston.

The family, all but Granpa Summerlin, are intimidated into silence. The little boy of the household is kidnapped and his father waylaid. Granpa meanders through the streets, near the supposed haunts of the thugs, playing his life as he goes.

He frees his grandson—rounds up the thugs—gives some clever tips to the local cops—and caps the climax by appearing at the trial of the killer as star witness. But what thrills and laughs there are along the way—before this is accomplished!

Frances Starr splendidly portrays Granpa's daughter and mother of the stolen boy. Other parts are deftly interpreted by Sally Blane, Grant Mitchell, Edward J. Nugent, Dicky Moore, aged five, Ralph Luce, Tom Dugan, Russell Hopton, Fletcher Norton, Robert Elliott, Guy D'Emery, George Ernst, aged nine, Mike Donlin, Noel Madison, Ed Deering and Nat Pendleton.

William A. Wellman, who directed the first great air picture, "Wings," and recently did "The Public Enemy" and "Night Nurse," directs "The Star Witness" with his usual skill. Story, dialogue and adaptation are by Lucien Hubbard, who deserves credit for conceiving one of the most unusual and delightful creations of this or any season.

BUCKS COUNTY ROADS HAVE BEEN IMPROVED

State Highway Department
Makes Much Progress
With Work

SECTIONS ARE NAMED

A rural road improvement 13 miles long on the Cherry Lane Road has been completed under Governor Pinchot's program to take the farmer out of the mud.

This improvement serves a farming community of Wrightstown Township with an all-weather outlet to the State highway near Penn's Park and to Wycombe at the other end, giving them access to nearby population centers and a good mail route. The road was widened and an oilbound surface applied by local labor under direction of State Highway engineers. The cost was $7,800.00.

A section of the Mill Road in Solebury Township has been completed with an oilbound surface for 3 of a mile from its intersection with the state highway leading into New Hope at Aquetong, north to the present hard surface west of Lahaska.

This short but important improvement completed that hard surface to Peters Corners and Carversville, Secretary of Highways Sam Lewis said, giving a farming district an all-weather direct outlet to the markets, schools and churches of New Hope Borough. The work was performed by local labor under direction of State Highway engineers at a cost of $4,500.00.

The Carversville Road has been given an oilbound surface from its intersection with the Gardenville Buckingham highway to the village of Cottageville.

soldier, who is forever talking about the battles he has won—tipping or giving his opinions on any and every subject—is a character of moving and unforgettable charm. As we said in the beginning, he is a show himself. So is Walter Huston—and so is Frances Starr. A great cast and a great picture—a picture for everybody. Take all your friends to see it. The rest is guaranteed.

DR. M. M. DORIZAS TO ADDRESS CLUB WOMEN

Greek Athlete, Traveler and Geographer to Speak About
The Bankan States

IS GUEST NIGHT

The lecturer at the Travel Club tomorrow evening will be Dr. Michael M. Dorizas, geographer, traveler, lecturer and world-famous Greek athlete. Dr. Dorizas will speak to the club women, their friends, and the members of the junior section of the Travel Club on the Balkan States. Having spent the summer in the Balkan States, the address will be most up-to-the-minute. Motion pictures and colored lantern slides will be shown.

Born in Constantinople, his parents being Greeks from the island of Cephalonia, the now famous man spent his early life in Cephalonia and neighboring regions. Later he passed the winters at Robert College, Constantinople, from which he graduated at the age of 17 with the degree of A. B. He then became a member of the faculty of his alma mater. The summer months were devoted to travel, and at the Greek Olympic Games he represented Greece.

Much territory was covered in his wanderings over the globe; his broad outlook, and sympathy and understanding for customs and habits of the people whom he visited, counting for much.

Dr. Dorizas is looked upon as a modern Hercules, with a brilliant intellect, and the strength of three men. His simplicity and gentleness delight all who have the pleasure of hearing him.

His first trip to America was in 1909, when he came to study the industries of the United States. A few years later he studied at the University of Pennsylvania for his Ph. D. He served in the American Army during the World War, and after the Armistice was called to the Peace Conference in Paris. Being a linguist of rare ability as well as a geographer, he later was sent by the State Department as geographic and linguistic expert to Syria and Palestine with the American section of the International Commission on Mandates in Turkey.

It is expected the club home will be filled tomorrow evening with those anxious to hear the traveler. Program will be in charge of Mrs. Caroline T. Smith; and music will also be a feature. Hostesses will be Mrs. Forrest Bilderback and Mrs. Joseph McCarron. Program will commence at eight.

Plan Big Campaign of Newspaper Advertising

Thousands of dollars will be spent in the next few weeks in newspaper advertising as the electric refrigeration bureau of the National Electric Light Association begins its final effort to sell 1,000,000 electric refrigerators of all makes in 1931. It was announced today by Alfred Tomesani, of Tomesani's Electrical Service, General Electric Refrigerator dealers here.

Many residents of Bristol have declared their intention of purchasing General Electric refrigerators and thousands of sales of similar nature will be made throughout the country, according to word received by Mr. Tomesani from the national headquarters of the N. E. L. A.

Outdoor posters and other advertising media will be used to build up holiday sales and Mr. Tomesani asserted that despite the economic condition in this part of the country, sales for this year have exceeded by far refrigerator sales for the same period in 1930.

NOMINATIONS UP

Harrisburg, Nov. 19.—Practically lost sight of in the hurly-burly legislative race for ratification of Governor Pinchot's unemployment relief program, the matter of confirmation or rejection of Governor Pinchot's nominations by the Senate today came to the fore in the absence of definite action by the House and Senate on the Governor's program.

POSTPONE TRIAL

Cambridge, Md., Nov. 19.—Postponement today of the trial of Yoel Lee, alias Orphan Jones, Negro, for the murder of a farmer, his wife and two daughters, halted elaborate preparations for the prevention of possible disorder here during the trial. The trial will not be held until next week, it was announced.

LABOR FAVORS PINCHOT PLAN

Harrisburg, Nov. 19.—Strongly endorsing Governor Pinchot's fifteen-point relief program, the State Federation of Labor today urged members of organizations to combat any statewide campaign organized to oppose the Governor's plan. Officials of the Federation said their endorsement of the Governor's aims did not constitute abandonment of the proposed income tax as a relief measure, but intimated they would concentrate on pushing the Pinchot bills to a successful conclusion.

WOMEN IN SESSION

Harrisburg, Nov. 19.—Sessions of the 9th annual convention of Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women were resumed today with the election of officers scheduled as the principal order of business. The Credentials Committee was to submit its final report and action taken on all other committee reports presented yesterday.

Charles Meredith, Jr., Slightly Hurt in Crash

PERKASIE, Nov. 19.—Charles M. Meredith, Jr., aged 27, of this place, well known upper Bucks county newspaperman, and president of the Bucks-Montgomery County Press League, narrowly escaped serious injury Saturday night when his auto was struck by another auto at the intersection of Bryn Mawr Road and Allen's Lane, Germantown.

The Meredith car was overturned and badly damaged. Mr. Meredith suffered cuts about the face and bruises. He was given first aid treatment at a nearby hospital.

The other auto figuring in the crash it was later learned, was a stolen car and in it was found a shot gun. The driver escaped during the excitement. The license was in the name of Miss Antoinette Carpenter, Villanova. Police have made no arrests. It is believed the auto thief was using the Bryn Mawr Road to make a get-away as this highway is not traveled heavily.

FESTIVE DECORATIONS FOR SHOPPING DISTRICT

Colored Lights and Christmas Trees Are to Adorn Mill and Radcliffe Streets

PLACED EARLY IN DEC.

Bristol's shopping district from Mulberry and Radcliffe streets to the intersection of Mill street and the Highway, at the Grand Theatre, is to be given a festive appearance for the Christmas holidays. This was definitely decided at a meeting of the merchants last night.

Twenty strings of colored lights are to be hung across the thoroughfares mentioned and a community Christmas tree is to be placed at Mill and Radcliffe streets. Small Christmas trees will be put at the base of each trolley pole and every merchant along the street will put forth extra efforts to make attractive window displays. The decorations will be placed during the first week in December.

The meeting, last night, was a large and enthusiastic one, and much interest was manifested on the part of the merchants. The district is to give a real holiday attire, this year.

L. C. Wetling was chosen president of the Mill Street Business Men's Association and the following officers were named in conjunction with him: John W. Colton, secretary; Edgar Spencer, treasurer.

The committee having the Christmas decorations in charge consists of: David Norman, chairman; Albert Moffo, Edgar Spencer, L. C. Wetling and Thomas Protz.

Hubert McGinley, of Pine street; Harold Loud, of Pine street; Martin J. Falon, Jr., of Buckley street; and Louis Pryor, of Croydon, motored to Baltimore Saturday and witnessed the Navy-Notre Dame football game.

Fined $50 for Shooting Pheasant From Automobile

Arrested on a charge of shooting pheasants from an automobile, Jacob Walters, Eddington, was given a hearing before Justice of the Peace James Laughlin, Croydon, last evening, and fined $50 and costs.

Walters was taken into custody Friday by Game Warden Daniel Potter, of Newportville, at a point near Croydon. Walters, it was stated by Potter, had been operating an automobile, and when a pheasant was sighted stopped the car and fired at the bird. The arrest followed.

Great Interest Shown In High School Play

The Bristol High School players are ready for the rising curtain of "Her Song," the musical comedy which is to be staged tonight and tomorrow night at the high school auditorium.

The most interesting story about which the play is woven, the musical numbers, and the dances full of pep, are attracting goodly crowds each evening, say those who are in charge of ticket sales.

The chorus numbers with "vint-ful" songs and attractive costumes will be some of the main attractions of the show.

THREE DIVORCE SUITS STARTED IN CO. COURTS

Florida Man Sues B. and L.
Secretary for Sum of $10,000

AUTO DAMAGE SUIT

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 19.—Three suits have been started in the Bucks County Courts, one for a divorce and two for damages.

Charging her husband, Paul Kruger, who is now serving a prison sentence in the Bucks County Prison for violation of the prohibition laws in connection with an inn, "The Blue Anchor," which he formerly operated, with cruel and barbarous treatment, Mrs. Celia A. Kruger filed a libel for divorce in the Court of Common Pleas here.

Mrs. Kruger, who now resides at Edison, declared that they were married on June 29, 1926, at Morrisville, by Justice of the Peace William H. Kunsman.

The respondent, Kruger, who was sentenced by President Judge Hiram H. Keller to serve one year in prison after being convicted by a jury on two charges of possessing intoxicating liquor, when State Police raided his inn located on the Newtown Pike and Second Street Pike, was admitted to prison on February 25, 1931.

According to court records, Kruger was arrested in Doylestown in 1923 for having liquor in his possession and served some time in Montgomery county for similar offenses.

Application for a parole several months ago was refused by Judge Keller.

Cephus Ernul, of the "Hy-Way Curve Restaurant," near Morrisville, has started a $15,050 damage suit against John C. Mellon, Jr., 22 Stewart avenue, Haverford, as the result of accident on the Lincoln Highway between Morrisville and Fallsington.

The defendant, an employee at the above restaurant, alleges that he was walking along the highway and was run down by Mellon. His claim for damages lists aid for medical treatment and loss of clothing valued at $50.

Ernul avers the accident happened on June 13, and that the defendant operated his car in a negligent and careless manner.

Charging the defendant, Jesse L. Smith, secretary of the Doylestown Building and Loan Association, and the Doylestown Building and Loan Association itself, with failure to consummate an agreement, A. Grant Stevens, retired, of Tampa, Florida, yesterday filed suit seeking damages amounting to $10,000, it was learned after the suit had been filed in the Prothonotary's office here.

In the statement of claim, which was prepared in the office of John L. Dubois, local attorney, it was alleged that the defendant agreed to convey the Galen Army property in the Iron Hill section to Stevens for $8,000, ten per cent to be deposited in five days and the balance of the purchase price on the date of settlement. Within five days, according to the suit filed, a tender of ten per cent was made and was refused, the defendant stating he could not accept it until after the Doylestown Building and Loan Association had received the Sheriff's deed.

Stevens, the suit avers, began the transaction on October 24.

The first trespass suit named Smith secretary of the Doylestown Building and Loan Association, as the defendant, and the second suit named the association as a defendant. Smith is a resident of Lahaska.

Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Faber and family, of Edgely, motored to Martinsburg, Va., over the week-end and visited relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Esslinger, of Philadelphia, spent Sunday with Mrs. Essinger's relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Jackson, of Wood street.

CURIOUS CROWD JAMS POLICE COURT TO HEAR TRIAL

Municipal Building is Packed
When Napoli Case is Called

RELEASED UNDER BAIL

Abduction Charge is Not Lodged, But Four Others Are

A crowd of several hundred curious spectators crowded into and about the Municipal police court last night in an attempt to hear the trial of Angelo Napoli, 24, 1027 Elm street. The police roll room, corridors, and the assembly room on the second floor were packed. Police and those interested in the case went from room to room in an attempt to select one where the crowd might be accommodated. Finally the office of Chief Jones was chosen and the hearing was actually heard by about a dozen persons.

The trial was a preliminary one and Napoli was called to answer the charges of assault and battery, aggravated assault and battery, wantonly pointing a firearm, and possession of a firearm.

He pleaded "not guilty" through his attorney, Howard I. James. Napoli was released in $1,000 bail until his case is called at court.

The hearing was held before Justice of the Peace James Guy, and Miss Anna Lentini, 810 Jefferson avenue, who is alleged to have been held up by Napoli last Friday night, was the only witness to testify.

Miss Lentini stated that Napoli pointed a gun at her. She was cross-questioned by Attorney James and made a good witness.

The charge of abduction was not lodged against Napoli.

The crowd at the hearing began to assemble before 8 o'clock and packed the sidewalk outside the Municipal Building.

SUPERIORITY

Most Americans consider their own republic superior to all others, past and present. They confess a feeling of superiority when they read Roman history. Rome tried the republican form of government and made a fizzle of it. The Romans failed because they were a greedy, glibble lot and let their politicians fool them and buy their votes with circuses and banquets. There is a feeling of condescension toward the French republicans, who have surrendered themselves into the hands of the bureaucrats and seem not to know what they want. And so on along the whole line of republics.

Other countries and other times have not brought the republican form of government up to the stage of ultimate perfection, it is true, but isn't this feeling of superiority on the part of the United States a little premature? Isn't it too early to brag?

Politically the American people are not without sin. Millions of votes are purchased every election by the modern counterparts of those Roman circuses and banquets. Votes are bartered for cash or less. Nor do all elections hinge on the relative merits of the opposing candidates. The commonest failure in the United States is the voter, and the silliest is the one who tries to vote with the majority.

These are facts which the voters must face if the republic of the United States is to rise above the inherent weaknesses of all republics. Nor are they unknown to the average voter. The truth of the matter is that the great majority of people have come to accept these political faults as necessary evils, crying out against them only when the other party uses them to its own advantage.

FARMERS CLEAR

The Middle West grain belt is an important part of the great American home market. It buys farm machinery, clothing, hats, shoes, furniture, radio sets, refrigerators, automobiles, or, in other words, almost everything produced in the factories of the United States as well as in the mines and upon the land. When it has money it buys and when it buys thousands of factories stretched from the Pacific to the Atlantic and from the gulf to the dominion turn their wheels and millions of factory workers go to work to earn the wherewithal for buying Middle West grain.

That explains why it was so important that wheat, corn and oats prices should skyrocket last week. It is estimated that within a few days rising grain prices had put $375,000,000 dollars into the pockets of farmers who either could not or would not unload their holdings before. The bulk of these reserves are in Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Texas and Missouri.

If grain prices go higher and stay there until the country's tremendous surplus has found a market, the grain states are going to know prosperity again. And they cannot have prosperity without a goodly share of it slopping over into every one of their sister states. Not all of those unexpected grain profits are going into the old sack on the rafter.

Frank Severn has been kidnapped from his country place, Beggar's Court, where his lawyer, Felix Sant, takes charge. Jim Wynter and his friend, Bill Grayson, search the place and find a hidden stairway and a locked door in the ruins of an ancient chapel. They begin to suspect Sant of being in league with the kidnapers when a wall "accidentally" falls, blocking this door, and become convinced of it when they find in his desk an anonymous letter addressed to Wynter, which obviously had been held up because it gave warning that Sant was not to be trusted.

Grayson, his wife, Wynter and Katharine Faring take a house, Manorways, near Beggar's Court. Katharine is the rightful owner of the missing Czarina Rubies by inheritance from her Russian grandfather, and Severn had tried to recover them for her.

Martin, Severn's servant, and a thug named Frome make a vain attempt to assassinate Wynter, and Grayson calls in a Scotland Yard detective.

NOW GO ON

CHAPTER XLVI

He showed her Bill's telegram referring to the Scotland Yard man after luncheon that day.

"Now there's a chance of getting a move on," he said with satisfaction.

"But I think it's wonderful how much you have found out already," said Katharine.

"Well, it's useful, of course; I'll give myself that pat on the back. Only there's not much actual proof so far—that's why we fought shy of going to the local police. The danger is lest we alarm those birds before we're in a position to act," Jim added thoughtfully.

"Queer, isn't it?—I've been living for years on the outer rim of civilization where a man has to be his own policeman, and nothing you'd call really exciting ever came my way. Then scarcely have I got back to humdrum old England, and all manner of exciting things begin to happen in a rush; all this mystery about poor old Frank—not to mention other exciting things too."

Her face looked puzzled as she echoed his words questioningly: "Other exciting things?"

"Why, yes. Running unexpectedly into you again, Katharine."

She gave a little laugh at his explanation, the color suddenly deepening faintly in her face.

THRILL

"Oh, I thought you meant something very thrilling!"

"But that's what I did mean," he told her.

"What was very thrilling, Jimmy?" demanded Milly, who had come up in time to catch the tail end of Katharine's words.

"Oh, just a great bit of luck that a wind of chance blew my way," explained Jim, leaving Milly as much in the dark as ever.

He ran across Ilsham that afternoon. He had walked over to the postoffice with some letters. Ilsham was standing, supporting himself on his crutches just inside the gate of his garden.

"Hello, Mr. Wynter," he said as Jim paused in the road. "My man, Webber, told me you were already installed at Manorways. Some hustle that, as we say in the States. Your dog all right again?"

"Oh, yes, thanks. I must bring him round to pay his respects to you. That yellow brute certainly did seem to imagine he had proprietorial rights in the village street!" laughed Jim.

"Queer, isn't it, how dogs are like human beings in these country places? Don't take kindly to strangers. I know I've been under suspicion ever since I came here—a stranger no one knew anything about!" Ilsham said with a smiling shrug. "Just the same on my side of the world, too."

"That's the States, you say? Been over here long?"

"Oh, not more than a couple of years or so," Ilsham said carelessly.

It was within the past twelve months that Bill Grayson whilst in New York had visited Sing Sing prison. And unless Bill's almost uncanny memory for faces was at fault—only Jim did not believe that it was at fault. Very doubtful, indeed, if Ilsham could possibly have been in England during that length of time he professed.

"But not in Mead's End, Ilsham, all that time?"

"No. I've only been here a few weeks. My job happens to be painting, so I'm not tied by the leg to any one spot. I lighted on this place by chance more than any thing, and something about it took my fancy. Had the idea I could paint here, and here I stayed," Ilsham said. "A sleepy, old-fashioned place that's pretty well the same to day, if I'm any judge, as it was in the old smuggling days of a century back, when, if all the stories are to be believed, it was a regular thing to run contraband up the estuary and every one in the village, more or less, from pot boy to parson, was in it."

Ilsham paused. Then suddenly: "I'm told there are some ruins at Beggar's Court, with a warren of vaults underneath said to have been used as a 'hide' for the stuff after a successful run. Close by the estuary, too—what could be more handy? I guess our people over there didn't invent bootlegging. You know, Mr. Wynter, one feels almost sorry to think," he added with a laugh, "that in these unromantic days that underground place has now no guilty secrets to hide."

PUZZLED

Jim looked hard at Ilsham, puzzled and suddenly on his guard. The abrupt reference to that secret place behind the underground door had seemed rather dragged in. Had it been dragged in deliberately? What was beneath the seemingly careless words—or was anything beneath them? Ilsham's face gave him no clue, but Jim could not shake off the sudden feeling that it had not been without design that the other man had forced that allusion—but why?

Their talk was interrupted. The sound of a motor car coming up behind him made Jim turn, to recognize Sant's burly figure at the wheel. Sant slowed down and drew up, beaming.

"Hello, Wynter. Don't mean to say you've dug yourself in at Manorways already?" he cried in his breezy voice.

"Last night," Jim said. "Feeling like an old inhabitant already. You don't know Mr. Ilsham, do you?"

"How do you do, Mr. Ilsham?" Sant waved a genial hand to the man on crutches. "You're more or less a newcomer, too, I understand?"

"Not quite so recent as Mr. Wynter—but I have only a few weeks' start of him," Ilsham said.

Jim wondered, as the two men acknowledged his introduction whether that little bit of playacting between these two other apparent strangers, Sant and Martell, was being repeated now for his benefit. Of course there might be no link whatever between Ilsham and that sinister circle of Frank Severn's enemies; quite possibly, as Jim realized, his mind had become colored by suspicion since his discovery of that secret network of duplicity and treachery at Beggar's Court. Yet the fact remained that this pretended cripple had lately been an inmate of Sing Sing, if Bill were to be relied on—was masquerading here under obviously false pretenses. And what further errand had taken Ilsham that night to the grounds of Beggar's Court?

"What about that fallen wall in the ruins, Sant?" Jim asked suddenly. "Have you arranged yet about having workmen in?"

"Sorry, I afraid I haven't yet. Been so busy. Too big a job to get done locally. Special tackle will be wanted, of course. I must see about it."

"I heard something about a wall collapsing at Beggar's Court," said Ilsham with sudden interest. "Real dandy ruins, I'm told, the sort that we'd give our ears to grow over in my country and can only import as the next best thing, but they don't sound too safe."

Sant frowned. "A d— dangerous place," he said.

A place so dangerous, dangerous in another way for him that Sant would do his best, Jim felt convinced, to keep that underground door permanently sealed against any intruders.

"Severn knew too much for their safety," the unknown writer of that letter had said. Had hinted, too, that the clue to the whole mystery should be looked for behind that blocked door.

But in spite of Sant that door was going to be opened—made to yield up its secret, whatever that secret might be! Jim had quite made up his mind as to that.

"Well, I must be pushing along," Sant said. "Look here, Wynter, what about looking in tonight after dinner, you and Grayson? He's down here, too, I suppose? And you, Mr. Ilsham—very glad if you'll blow along, too."

"Thanks very much. I shall be delighted," said Ilsham.

"And you, Wynter? Good. About nine shall we say? And perhaps I may have a little surprise for you," he added with a chuckle.

And with a bland wave of his hand Sant drove on.

ASSISTANCE

Accordingly, after dinner that night Bill Grayson and Jim drove over to Beggar's Court.

"Well, I brought Haste's interest up to the boiling point," Bill had already explained, "and after that we had a pow-wow with his chief. Net result, Haste's going to get down to it. I'm seeing him again tomorrow—and he wants a talk with you, Jim; of course, most of what I told him was only second hand from you. Like us, Haste feels we've got to have that underground door opened, and that some way's got to be contrived to force Sant's hand."

Jim nodded.

"There's something hidden, something dangerous, behind that door—not a doubt of that. But what—well, I haven't even begun to guess!"

The night was dark and there was a faint tinge of mist blowing in from sea as they turned up the drive of Beggar's Court. Mrs. Martin, not her husband, answered their knock—a hard featured woman, whose eyes seemed to hold a veiled hospitality, as she held the door open for them. Sant came hurrying out into the hall.

"Well, here you are," he cried. "Not brought Ilsham along with you?"

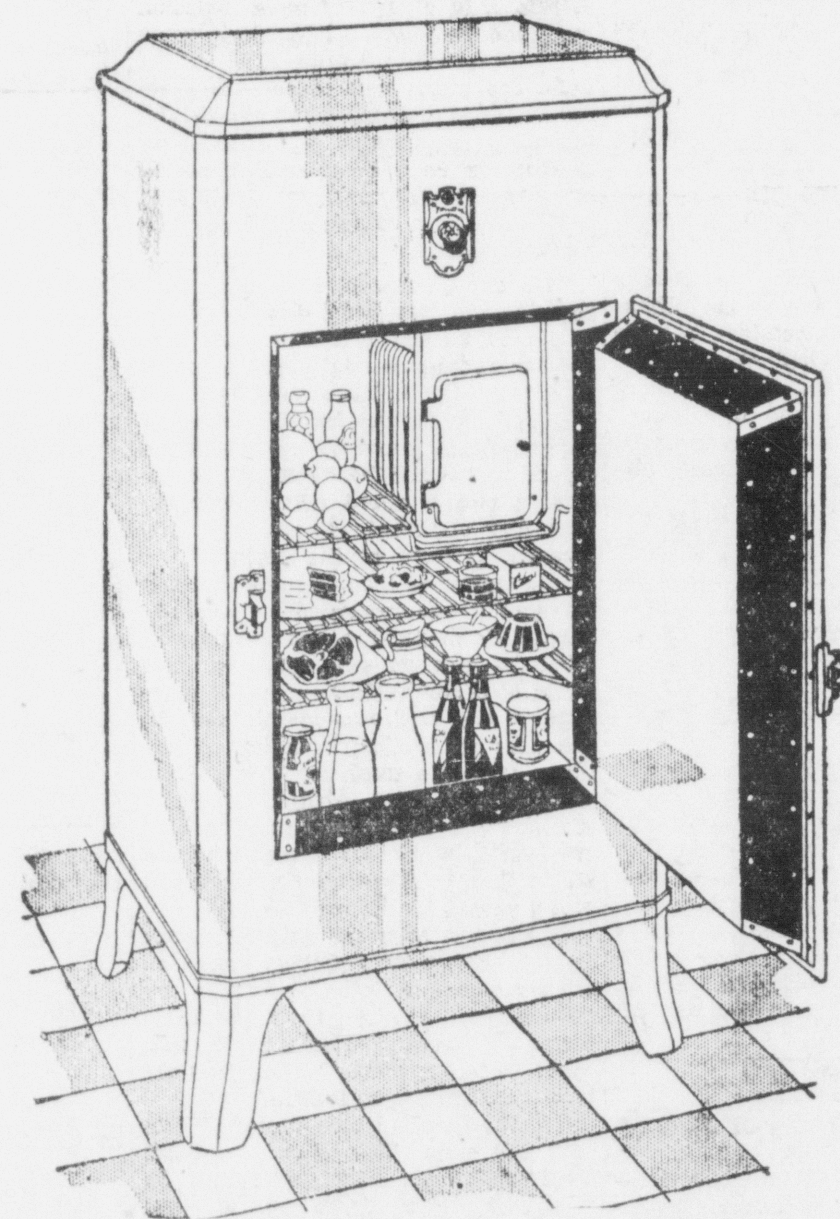

"We did call at his place, to give him a lift. But his man said he wasn't in," Bill explained, as he divested himself of his coat.

"Oh, I expect he'll be along soon," said Sant.

He led the way to the drawing-room. Through the open door Jim had a glimpse of an unexpected familiar face. He strode in, to shake hands with Dr. Martell's step-daughter.

They FROZE They ROASTED

TO GIVE YOU THE GASOLINE WITH CLIMATIC-CONTROL*

20° below zero! 150° above!

Such cold, such heat, you and your car will probably never have to endure. But Mobilgas engineers did—to give you the Climatic-Control now in Mobilgas.

They found out exactly how the performance of gasoline is affected by the variations of "engine heat," caused by changes in weather, temperature, humidity, altitude or road "pull."

Then they adjusted its specifications so that now Mobilgas automatically adapts itself to all these varying conditions.

Result: Any time, anywhere—Mobilgas now gives you the highest usable level of performance.

And Climatic-Control is added without price increase! Fill up today with Mobilgas and let your car decide.

*CLIMATIC-CONTROL is the pre-adjustment of the specifications of Mobilgas so that it automatically adapts itself to the variations in "engine heat," even as high as 400° F., caused by changes in temperature, altitude, humidity and road "pull." In the Mobilgas Research Laboratories, all these changing climatic conditions have been "manufactured" in hot and cold testing chambers. Here engine tests are conducted day after day. The road performance of Mobilgas is thus scientifically verified at different "engine heats," and its specifications are pre-adjusted before it is placed on sale in your locality.

COLD ROOM TESTS—By turning off the heat units and turning on refrigerating apparatus, the engineers reproduce driving temperatures as low as 20 degrees below zero. This verifies scientifically the "cold weather" pre-adjustment for Climatic-Control.

Drawings from actual photographs made at Mobilgas Research Laboratories, Paulsboro, N. J.

HOT ROOM TESTS—In this specially constructed chamber, electric heating units, controlled by thermostats, duplicate the summer temperatures of your locality. Tests are made at as high as 150 degrees F., hotter than the hottest day you have ever known. Here the "hot weather" pre-adjustment for Climatic-Control in Mobilgas is scientifically verified.

ONLY FEW GRID GAMES
IN COLLEGIATE REALM

By Gene Myers

I. N. S. Sports Writer

Only a sprinkling of collegiate football clashes dot Pennsylvania grid-iron this Saturday.

With the better half of the Keystone State's grid squads battling on out-of-state grounds, or inactive because of Thanksgiving Day games, a round dozen contests will be played in Pennsylvania Saturday.

Villanova's get-together with Georgetown at Villanova and Lehigh's match with Lafayette at Bethlehem are outstanding.

Coach Stuhldreher drilled his Villanova charges consistently in offensive plays during the week in preparation for the Georgetown game. Offensive attack of the Wildcats has been lacking somewhat in recent games.

The contest will be the last for seven members of the Villanova squad. Of this number, six will see action against Georgetown. Captain Ed. Kobilis, veteran guard who was injured in the clash with Duke several weeks ago, will not play against Georgetown. A fair record has been made this season by the Georgetown eleven and Coach Stuhldreher has drilled the Wildcats intensively in an attempt to repeat last season's performance when Villanova defeated Georgetown, 13 to 0. Villanova is favored in the match.

One of the best defense elevens in the East, Lafayette, will enter the game with Lehigh in a determined effort to keep the nineteen points which have been scored against McCracken's Maroon eleven at nineteen points. Only Colgate and Penn. two of the ranking teams of the East, have scored against Lafayette.

While Lafayette has drilled strenuously for the match, Lehigh too has undergone intensive preparation for the meet. Because of its superior defense and an improved attack, however, Lafayette is expected to win.

Geneva should have little trouble in overthrowing Westminster at Beaver Falls. The football squad of Indiana Teachers' College will find a hard foe in Shippensburg.

St. Joseph gridsters should defeat Washington at Philadelphia. St. Thomas meets an unknown foe in U. S. Destroyer. Dickinson is favored in the match with Muhlenberg at Easton. Juniata should find little trouble in overthrowing Waynesburg. The game between Grove City and Thiel at Grove City is a toss-up.

Haverford, by virtue of a surprising change in practice sessions, is expected to bowl over Delaware. St. Vincent should have little trouble in defeating New River at Latrobe.

She envied her friend's snowy washes

THERE'S really no secret about it, you know. You could get gleaming, snowy washes, too—if you used Rinso. Its thick suds are different. They're so rich and lively, they loosen dirt. And my clothes come so white, you don't even need to boil!

Great for tub washing, too

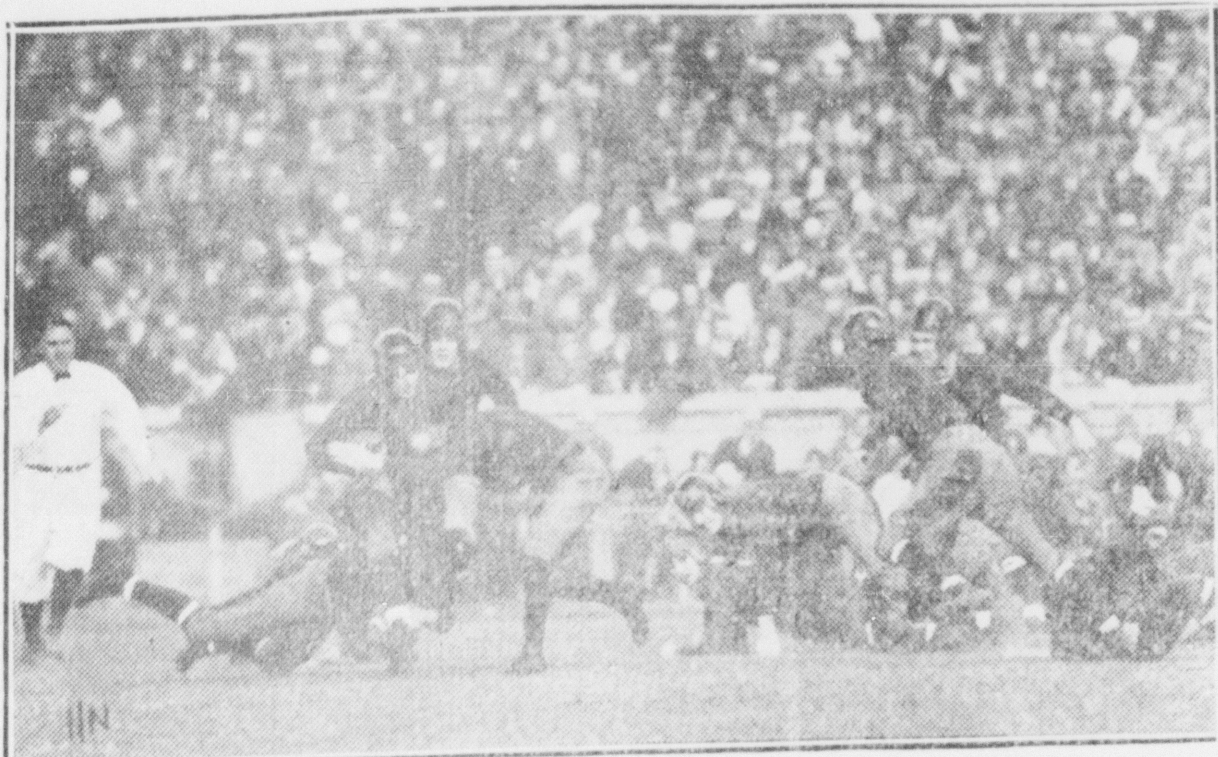

The makers of 40 famous washers recommend Rinso. Just as wonderful for tub washing—soaks out dirt, saves scrubbing. How that saves the clothes!

Cup for cup, Rinso gives twice as much suds as lightweight, puffed-up soaps, even in hardest water. Get the BIG package. You'll like Rinso's lively suds for dishes, too!

TRICKS of MAGIC
EXPLAINED by Will L. Lindhorst

HOW TO MAKE A PEG JUMP FROM ONE HOLE TO ANOTHER

The secret of this trick lies in the way the holes are placed in the pencil. Two holes are drilled through the pencil, and two deep indentations resembling holes are made, one on each side, making what appears to be three holes in the pencil. Each of the indentations is placed at opposite ends of the two holes as shown in the above drawing. Make a small peg, place it in hole number two, twist the pencil so the other side comes on top and the peg will have jumped to hole number one. The same can be done with holes number two and three. The illusion is more effective if the pencil is twisted quickly.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely. But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.
